Introducing the VPD "E-Station"

Confronted with the loss of personnel and the continuing need to respond to emergency calls and process complaints, the Vallejo Police Department has been substituting technology solutions for lost services. Part of this effort is the use of on-line reporting for certain crimes and other events.

While not the effective customer service we used to provide; on-line reporting allows people to document non-violent crimes and non-injury traffic collisions by selecting the appropriate button on our webpage, www.vallejopd.com and supplying the details of the event. The information is processed and a copy of the report is e-mailed to them at no charge.

Those who do not have Internet access have been asked to use a friend's computer or to file reports at a branch library.

Effective Monday November 10, 2008, on-line reporting will also be available at the Vallejo Police Department during our public lobby hours. The VPD "E-Station" allows users to report non-violent crimes, abandoned vehicles, lost and found property and non-injury traffic collisions. Users may also request copies of previously filed reports.

Our current lobby hours are Monday and Wednesday through Friday from 9:30 AM to 5:00 PM and Tuesday from 9:30 AM to 6:30 PM.

Reports can still be filed by leaving a message at our General Message Mailbox. A police department volunteer will return the call and provide assistance with filing a report.
